MILAN BERGAMO AIRPORT IS THE MOST PUNCTUAL AIRPORT IN EUROPE IN THE FIRST TEN DAYS OF JULY

Milan Bergamo Airport has seen the best levels of air transportation punctuality in Europe. This is what has emerged from the report on delays and cancellations published by the specialised agency Hopper Inc. on the basis of data collected via the Official Aviation Guide, the information and analysis database regarding airport and airline performance.

In the first ten days of July, characterised by difficulties in handling European air traffic that led to an elevated number of delays (between 60 and 70%), and cancellations in the majority of international airports, Milan Bergamo Airport emerged as having the lowest levels and as having best managed the situation, with 3% of flights delayed and one flight cancelled every 100 scheduled.

The results were due on the one hand to operational aspects, characterised by the management of passenger flows, which have increased to pre-COVID levels, and the respecting of turn-around times for flights, and on the other to the positive effect of a number of infrastructure adaptations that allow for timesaving and an increased operative capacity of aprons. These results were reached thanks to the professionalism and dedication of the SACBO Group workforce and all the organisations and companies operating in various roles within the airport.
